Seniors Question Tradition

BY MARY ELWART

This time every year, high school seniors begin preparation for what some consider to be the high point of a student's academic life--graduation. Feb. 23, at 8 a. m. , DHS seniors will be measured for caps and gowns.

According to Principal Leonard Mazur, last year marked the beginning of dissent on this topic. "We were never aware that students resented wearing caps and gowns. I never knew those opinions existed until after it was too late."

Several students, some of whom were considered to be in the academic top of their class, questioned the practice and decided not to conform. As a result, they were barred from participating in commencement activities.

What many of the students resented, and still do, is having to pay (literally) for a tradition which they personally find either objectionable or undesirable.

This issue is still alive and a repeat performance of last year's statement, barring ungowned students from exercises, is expected. Mr. Mazur personally feels students should be allowed to dress as they choose--wearing caps and gowns only if they wish to. He does believe that proper attire be worn, such as the dignity of the occasion dictates.

Even though Mr. Mazur feels this way, and has for the past eight years, the rest of the school board and fellow administrators do not. It is more than likely he will be pressured from other forces into making a statement similar to last year's.

However, for the Class of '71, the controversy takes on a new dimension. If graduation exercises are considered to be a school activity under which caps and gowns are mandatory, should they not be supplied to seniors at no charge under the Michigan Supreme Court ruling.

Perhaps this last concept seems somewhat extreme in its impracticality, but students having to pay $4.25 year after year seems a bit unreasonable also.

It would be more feasible for students to invest their money into a fund which would be used to purchase caps and gowns. They would become school property like band uniforms.

This would probably take more than this year's graduating class's efforts, but if this practice had been started along with the tradition, perhaps there would not be the dissent on this issue that there is today.
